

CALL: Computer Assisted Language Learning -- – A Look at Underpinnings and Origins ---

Paul KOHL

Department of Medical Social Work Faculty of Medical Welfare Kurashiki, Okayama, 701-0193, Japan

(Accepted 2000-10-31 00:00:00+09)

Key words:CALL, computer assisted language learning, ESL, second language learning, foreign language study

Abstract

Computers continues to revolutionize the way we do things. Language teaching, along with most other activities, is being affected by them. This paper will look at how we came to the place we are today by examining the evolution of CALL, computer assisted language learning.
